The Bazar.

On Washington's Birthday last year Essex Hook and Ladder Company demonstrated the fact that they knew how to manage a Bazar on a large scale, and on Monday and Tuesday last they fully sustained the reputation which they had acquired.

The decorations exceeded all previous attempts in Library Hall. From the centre of the ceiling were suspended five clusters of Japanese umbrellas in the shape of balloons, with streamers of red bunting carried in graceful curves to the sides of the hall. Under the circular windows on the sides and over the rear gallery were bunches of umbrellas. The arch over the stage was draped with American flags and parasols, and the stage was covered overhead with striped canvas, making a pretty effect, and a comfortable refreshment parlor.

The new heating apparatus made the hall comfortable—an agreeable surprise to a Bloomfield audience.

The effect on entering the hall was strikingly beautiful. The stairs to the gallery and the upright columns were wound with flags. In the center of the hall was the rustic flower bower; on the right was seen the paper flower bower the paper and stationary table and the art table. On the left was the lemonade well, the fancy table and the confectionery booth. The refreshments were on the stage. In the upper hall was shown the loan collection, which was one of the greatest attractions, an account of which appears elsewhere in the Citizen.

The smaller part of the upper hall was used for the cane toss, where a cane could be had for a penny, provided the ring purchased was thrown over any of the numerous canes in the stand.

In the lower room, formerly used by the Town Committee, was the Gypsy camp, and a real camp it looked. The kettle on a tripod over a fagot fire contained the frogal meal of the wandering tribe of fortune tellers, and in the tents could be seen the seers, who for a dime would make a prediction for the future, and if the forecast was not shocking enough a startling effect was produced by a galvanic battery.

It would be unjust to the ladies, who vied with each other in making their tables attractive, to particularize in this regard, and it is sufficient to say that the tables, the articles offered for sale, and the sellers were beautiful and attractive. A prominent feature of the Bazar was the voting, and as the price of expressing a preference was only a penny, nearly every one was a voter and many "repeaters" were seen among the voters.

On Monday evening a beautiful basket of flowers was voted to Miss Whipple and on Tuesday Mr. Isaac P. Johnson was the recipient of the rubber tire, coat and boots, and Mr. W. B. Dodd of the fur robe presented by Mr. George Roubaud.

The music on Tuesday evening was a pleasing feature and was much enjoyed. In conception and execution the Bazar was a success and the result will insure the company an attractive parlor and proper heating facilities.

THE LOAN EXHIBITION.

Last year, when a Loan Exhibition was proposed in connection with the Bazar, the ladies and gentlemen of the committee felt that they were entering upon unexplored ground. The result then was a surprise to all who saw the collection. This year their efforts have been even more satisfactory—the room used (upper Library Hall) being larger, permitted a better display of the articles, which were more numerous, and, as a collection, more valuable than the former one.

At one end an old carved mantel piece, belonging to Miss M. Fanny Dodd, was arranged, with brass andirons, fender, etc. On the mantel shelf, candles burned in antique brass candlesticks from Newfoundland and Nova Scotia (Miss A. L. Ward). Over this hung a case of arms (Mr. Chas. T. White), containing a battle-axe of the fifteenth century, Helvetian two-edged sword, Japanese nobleman's sword, hari kari sword, Cossack's scimitar, Bedouin horse-bit, and a Bedouin bullet-pouch. In connection with this exhibit were a pair of halberds and a crusader's helmet. On the two sides of the room glass cases extended, in which were arranged the smaller and most valuable articles. The collection of china was good, including most of last year's and some new pieces. A beautiful bowl of Iatsumi ware (Mrs. C. H. Nash), a tea jar of Kiyomizu ware, and a cup presented by the Emperor of Japan to the contributor, Mr. Kataoka, were much admired.

Mr. G. W. Dedrick contributed among other things a very curious Phoenician lamp three thousand years old, and a piece of the coat worn by President Lincoln when assassinated. One of the most interesting articles shown was the watch used by Napoleon I., which as well as a plate from a dinner set which belonged to Maximilian, of Mexico, were loaned by Mrs. Dr. Gress. In Mr. Jarvis Peloubet's collection of musical instruments were a Japanese Harp and Flute. Upon the latter were characters which have always been supposed to be the instructions for playing, but a Japanese gentleman present informed us that the inscription is a verse of a short poem, descriptive of moonrise and the calling of the wild geese.

The Ocarina, used in Madeira and Italy proved a curiosity to many. It is made of pottery and is played in somewhat the same manner as a flute. The Saxophone, a silver instrument and the Double Flageolet were also interesting.

Mrs. Walter Morris' collection of coins, glass, sponge and paper money; Mrs. John Ward's Chinese Goddess of Mercy; Mrs. Chittling's pretty bead belt made by native children on the coast of Africa; Mrs. Newton Smith's piece of Pizarro's shroud, which by the way is the second piece of that ancient garment in Bloomfield, and Mr. J. L. Clark's beautiful brass jar added to the interest of the collection. The Western Union Telegraph Co. loaned through Mr. Brewster, the earliest telegraph instrument (from the collection of Prof. S. F. B. Morse).

Perhaps the most prominent object in the exhibition was the very beautiful old Japanese lacquer clock case with English works, said by the catalogue to be probably the only one of its kind in the United States. This was contributed by Mrs. Norman White.

A manikin in armor stood on a table near the door where the motto, floating from his spear, "Qui va là?" challenged the entering visitor. This fine piece of work is supposed to have been made as a suggestive toy for some noble or perhaps royal boy centuries ago.

Those interested in Philately found Mr. Fred. White's collection of stamps to be very valuable. Exhibit 252 has a curious history. It is a small square of dark metal covered with Japanese characters, which was presented to Rev. S. W. Dunfield and used by him for a paper weight. Mr. M. Kataoka deciphered the inscription which proves it to be a portion of a bell, which was given as a thank offering for escape from a storm in 1710 by the captain and crew of a Japanese ship.

The collection of curious books contained many that are valuable and rare. A copy of "Jerusalem the Golden," by Bernard of Morlaix, is one of three copies in this country. It is of the best edition, 1610. "Sible's Astrology," published in 1728, is illustrated with old astrological symbols. Both of these books are owned by Mr. Dunfield. Prof. Chas. M. Davis loaned a copy of Demosthenes (in the original, 1570), which is a very good specimen of a rare edition—the Greek having the old legends and contractions.

The walls of the room were hung with draperies, Greek, Turkish and Japanese costumes. An autograph letter of Gen.

Washington (Mr. E. W. Sutton), paintings on copper (Mr. John Newton), a beautiful study in black and white (Mr. Fred. White), and some very fine pastels belonging to Mr. Chas. T. White. Among the numerous interesting articles loaned by Dr. Kennedy, particular mention must be made of the valuable antique snuff box.

The Loan Exhibition as a whole was a truly interesting one and surprise was felt by many that so choice a collection could be made in Bloomfield. Associated with the committee as published in "Essex No. 1," (the organ of the Bazar), were Mr. and Mrs. Nash, Miss Gray and Mr. Kataoka, who all rendered most efficient aid. The catalogue was dainty and summed up the exhibition in a little verse of its own:

The past with halting step draws near
 To lay her precious treasures here.
 And commerce in her outstretched hands,
 Brings curious things from far off lands.
 Here science teaches all who will,
 And art displays her lovely skill.

The various committees having charge of the several departments were made up as follows. The general committee of arrangements was composed of members of the company as follows:

C. E. McDowell, Chairman; Frank G. Tower, Treasurer; J. Howard Hardcastle, Secretary; T. Howell Johnson, H. B. Davis, C. D. M. Peelle, J. T. Dawes, John Dalrymple, I. F. Johnson, M. E. Joffrey, W. H. Johnson.

ART TABLE.—Miss Josephine D. Davis, Mrs. Lamberson Sherwood, Miss Marian Puffer, Miss Minnie W. Dodd, Miss Lillian Coggeshall.

FANCY TABLE.—Miss May Norris, Miss Josie Earl, Miss Lillian Williams, Miss Gussie Folsom, Miss Lizzie Alling, Miss Mamie Close.

REFRESHMENTS.—Miss Dalrymple, Mrs. J. T. Dawes, Mrs. C. E. McDowell, Mrs. Joseph Carter, Mrs. T. M. Nevins, Mrs. W. R. Chas. Davis, Mrs. E. W. Sutton, Mrs. J. S. Chittling, Miss Benson, Miss Mamie Dodd.

A Blind Man's Duel.

It is doubtful if any theatre ever afforded such volumes of romantic incident as the deck of the old time Mississippi steamer. In the old days before railroads traversed the continent in every direction, and the West was a wilderness, New Orleans was the Mecca of travelers, and the fleet, war-borne palaces of the inland sea carried thousands of pleasure seekers to the South. It was then that life was a carnival, and men and women surrendered themselves to the most lavish enjoyments. Gaming was a custom, and courage an instinct. Men were as prone to brawls as the sparks to fly upwards. Conspicuous among the fierce and rollicking habits of the steamers was Captain West, a noted duelist. One day he engaged in a controversy with a gentleman whom he met on the deck, whom he accused of staring at him impudently.

"Why do you look at me so intently," demanded the Captain.

"I am not looking at you," calmly replied the stranger, his eyes meanwhile fixed in a stony glare upon the duelist's face. "But you are, sir!"

"I am not."

The Captain turned away, but in a short time afterward he felt those stony eyes were again upon him and following all his movements with pitiless ferocity. It became inexplicably annoying, and the Captain at last determined to make an end of it. Stepping up to the stranger he inquired with suppressed passion—

"Can you fight as well as look?"

"Perhaps so, I never tried it. Place me however in position and I will do my best."

The singular conduct of the stranger had by this time attracted universal attention, and whispered conferences regarding his remarkable appearance agitated little groups of persons all over the boat. In a short time, however, the vessel rounded to a landing for wood, and then the parties to the impromptu duel went ashore. The stranger was led off by a negro servant, who seemingly picked his way. Indeed, from the intense interest he was manifesting in the encounter the colored servant was apparently more interested in the encounter than his master. But the time allotted for the preliminaries was brief, and the men were speedily put in position and pistols placed in their hands.

The word was given, and two ringing reports flashed out on the air. Captain West fell pierced to the heart. The stranger stood erect, calm and dignified. His second rushed up to him.

"Are you hurt, sir?"

"No. How is it with my antagonist?"

"Can't you see? You have killed him."

"No. I am unable to see."

"You can't see?"

"No. I am blind."

And he was. The tragedy was a nine days' wonder, and all sorts of rumors were rife as to the identity of the fatal stranger. But who he was and whether he went was a mystery never solved. The circumstance went to make up an incident in the dark and bloody memories which made famous the old time.

Ouida says: "A girl's love must never be begged, but conquered." That's all very well, but how to subdue the thick-skinned parent of the period, is what's bothering our young men just now.

Says a philosopher: "No thoroughly occupied man was ever miserable." Did that philosopher ever have a conductor stand in front of him while he fitted out a search expedition for his solitary horse car ticket?

Is BABYHOOD for February? The Babys' Bath," with all pertains to it, by Marion Harland, makes one of the most interesting and practical subjects yet touched upon by this magazine. An important article on "False Croup: its Prevention and Treatment" is by Dr. John H. Ripley, professor of the diseases of children at the New York Polyclinic. George E. Waring, Jr., the well-known sanitary engineer, gives many practical suggestions regarding plumbing in its relation to pure air for nursery inmates. Harlan H. Ballard, whose labors in the young people's Agassiz Association have identified him as a friend of all lovers of nature, contributes a charming paper on "Nature in the Nursery," urging the desirability of giving full sway to inquiries by the little ones about "their friends," the flowers, the pebbles, and the "birds." Cyrus Edison, of the New York Herald, in a healthful manner calculated to make a vast difference in the purchase of certain kinds of colored confectionery, if his advice were heeded. The department of "Nursery Problems"—queries by readers, with answers by the editors—is becoming exceedingly useful, comprising a great variety of topics of interest to all.

THE HARLEM RAILROAD.

Valuable Suggestions of Interest to Men Employed on all Railroads—Read it, if You Would be Benefited.

No man is better known along the line of the Harlem R. R. than Conductor Frederick J. Kennedy, who, as Conductor of the Harlem Depot, New York City, has been for many years.

DEAR SIR: I take pleasure in saying a good word for DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. I have used it for two years for Dyspepsia and derangement of the Liver, and can say with emphasis that it always affords prompt and complete relief. FAVORITE REMEDY is pleasant to the taste, thorough in its effects, never producing the slightest disagreeable or sickening sensation. Yours truly, R. C. TROWBRIDGE.

But Mr. Trowbridge is not alone in his praise of DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. I have used it for many other ailments for a number of years, and it has proved an effective cure for Malaria as well as Indigestion. Read the following from R. A. Campbell, Foreman of the sorting room in the Montgomery Paper Mill.
